Subject: 2008 EIS for Makah tribe"s request to resume whaling

My comment to the EIS for the Makah to resume whaling is this:

Killing whales cannot be justified for cultural ceremonies. Traditions need to be updated and changed to the current times. To allow whale hunting to resume will just open the door for whale hunting nations to increase their whale hunting activities and assume that whales are plentiful. There may indeed be a reason for subsistence hunting in some parts of the world but certainly not for the Makah in Washington.
